Common Ground, Connected Heritage – Our American Family

Where do families descended from owners and enslaved come together to discuss their common connection, heritage, the legacies of slavery and roads to healing? It happened at Historic Sotterley during the Our American Family event, April 19-21, 2018. As part of the Common Ground Connected Heritage project funded by Maryland Humanities, the three day event ranged from the artistic mystique and romantic legend of George Washington to personal stories of lived inequality calling people to action for social justice. It allowed people already active in our communities to glean insight and knowledge to help expose our society's scars and heal the still open wounds, and to gain strength and validation for their good and challenging work. The stories of descendants helped open discussions and come to grips with our past to face our common struggles and fears, by hearing differing experienced perspectives of our past. There were tears of joy and priceless moments as generations of family came together, and branches of the same family rediscovered one another. We learned of each other's accomplishments and triumphs, and built on the struggles and achievements of our ancestors. It was a small glimpse into what our community and nation could achieve with honest history, listening ears, and open hearts. Historic Sotterley was honored to facilitate this event and will continue in this mission.

Sotterley Education, MSDE, STEM, EXPLORATION and LEARNING!

"So what did you feel when you were researching and creating your project that showed the brand used on the enslaved as they boarded the slave ship?" When asked this question, a 4th grade STEM student from Lexington Park Elementary School, answered, "I think it was dehumanizing." When we hear this kind of insight at Sotterley from young people, it gives us so much hope for the future. The 4th grade STEM students, led by their teachers, Tammy Belisario and Cindy Carpenter, created signage this year to be donated and used by Sotterley Education. They raised the money themselves at their Spirit night, and spent from fall to spring writing, editing, collecting photographs and digitally designing their signage. The signage included QR codes so visitors could go get more information from Sotterley's website as well as the website created by students from last year. Their experience is based on the Living on the Patuxent program at Sotterley, which uses the 1727 inventory of James Bowles, first owner of what was to become Sotterley. This document gives us a glimpse into what life was like in the period here. Students also keep tabs on erosion each year by measuring from season to season. The signage created by the students will be used for site visitors of all ages.

A WORD FROM OUR PRESIDENT

We hope all of you are enjoying our wonderful early summer weather. Come join us for Sotterley's Year of Exploration!

Much of this issue is dedicated to telling you about our first major Descendant's Event. The event, "Common Ground, Collective Heritage" was an amazing multi-day celebration for all those who connect their heritage to Sotterley. It was funded by a grant from Maryland Humanities and by support from several of our descendants. It was a powerful and meaningful experience as you will be able to tell from our pictures and stories.

Our descendants are literally "family" but many in our community are also considered part of Sotterley's "family". Our Hollywood neighbors, like Louise Snell, who came to our rescue after Hurricane Irene are "family". Louise and others stopped working with the devastation in their own yards and came to Sotterley to help us.

Our volunteers are "family" - people like Leslie Burgess. Leslie has served in nearly every job a volunteer can - at our Museum shop, as an educational instructor, a volunteer for Ghosts of Sotterley and WineFest, and she and her husband, Harry, have decorated the House for the holiday season for the past many years.

Our staff are "family". All of them put in long hours, many of which are volunteered, to make this place ready for you and your family.

We recently posted a video on Facebook that shows children and their families enjoying education programs and fun family events throughout the year. Come out with yours and enjoy our beautiful 94 acres of rolling pasture, farmland and forest perfectly situated on the Patuxent River. Take one of our Nature Walks; come enjoy our Exploration Fridays or our Bird Watching or our star gazing.

Families and Sotterley go together like peanut butter and jelly. Come see us! We'll be waiting.

Warmest Regards,
Bert Johnston
President, Board of Trustees

P.S. Our Gala is going to be Saturday, June 9th, and the theme is "Gatsby in the Garden". Don't miss it - it promises to be fantastic!

EDUCATION (cont)

Another popular program Sotterley Education offers is Tidewater Plantation Life. This program gives early elementary school children a taste of what life would have been like for children living and working at Sotterley and what they experienced. Whether you were George Cane, an enslaved boy working to bring water to the girls' boarding school while listening in on their lessons in the mid 1800's, or young Rebecca Plater, playing games in the garden with her siblings in the 1700's, students experience hands-on interactive activities that engage and create authentic experiences in the actual place where these children of the past once walked.

During a visit from Mutual Elementary School from Calvert County, Sotterley welcomed observers from the Maryland Department of Education, Breanna Creed and Leah Renzi. Sotterley programming is observed at least once a year as a State Aided Institution. SAI is a state grant program facilitated by the Maryland State Department of Education. One of the advantages of this for Sotterley besides some grant funding to serve students, is being on the cutting edge of education in the state. Sotterley's programming is aligned with state standards and directives. Sotterley's Education personnel are also invited to attend trainings and even present to other educators in the state. Please encourage your state representatives to keep funding this important SAI program that not only benefits Sotterley, but a list of other non-profit organizations that provide these essential experiences to Maryland Students. Sotterley regularly touches students, teachers and parents from 5 to 6 school districts in Maryland and the District of Columbia each and every year.

Sotterley offers the public three, award winning year-round exhibits, Land Lives and Labor at the Corn crib, the Slave Cabin exhibit and the new Urgency of Preservation exhibit at the Warehouse. Visitors can view Sotterley's introductory film, A Tidewater Legacy, and the film, The Choice, both at the Visitor Center, as well as learn from interpretive signage over the historic core, audio grounds tours, and docent led tours of the manor house from May to October. And this is just on a regular day for visitors at Sotterley! To find out more about what Sotterley education has to offer, call the office or email the Education department at education@sotterley.org.

JUNIOR DOCENT ACADEMY June 18 & 19, 9:00 am - 5:00 pm

There are so many ways for the family to explore Sotterley this summer!

Last summer, Sotterley hosted Butterfly Fridays, which were popular and fun. This summer, become a Citizen Scientist during Butterfly Week, June 25-29th, featuring family-friendly guided activities for all ages. Read and hear about The Very Hungry Caterpillar, see and touch caterpillar food, create your own hungry caterpillar, build and decorate a butterfly house, make butterfly baths, butterfly feeders, and mini butterfly gardens. Become an official Sotterley caterpillar and butterfly counter!

And you won't want to miss Exploration Fridays, each Friday morning from July 6 through August 3rd, with a different activity every week! Explore trails, paint with nature, create and play colonial games, explore seeds and planting, go on a bugs, bees and butterfly hunt, and make your own music.

Bring a picnic and stay for the day — it's the perfect getaway, right in your backyard!

What was the most important thing you learned at this event?

"It's important to embrace your community—good and bad.

I learned about the extensive efforts that the Sotterley Board took to broaden its historical genealogical programming and present a balanced history of the property and the people associated with it.

Old hurts can be healed through communication, empathy, and understanding.

There's hope for better race relations.

The importance of preserving history—no matter the cost.

Never stop learning, ask questions, learn who you are.

We can come together from multiple perspectives, cultures, races, religions, and genders and examine our shared histories and find our commonalities."

Common Ground, Connected Heritage—Our Family Album Special Moments and Lasting Memories

Presenting Sotterley's Newest Permanent Exhibit

Saving History: The Urgency of Preservation, premiered April 18th in Sotterley's Warehouse. The exhibit, aimed at informing why historic preservation is so important, features the story of Resurrection Manor, an early manor house also in Hollywood. Designated as a National Historic Landmark in 1970, this 18th century building was demolished for development. Sotterley is located on the original Resurrection Manor land grant and the history of Resurrection Manor and Sotterley are intertwined. The exhibit incorporates artifacts from the original Resurrection Manor dwelling such as beams, wood panels and bricks. A timeline of photographs illustrates the decay and deterioration of this historic dwelling. The exhibit was funded with grants from the Delaplaine Foundation, The Society of Colonial Wars, and the Brown Family Fund. For this exemplary project, Sotterley was recognized by the St. Mary's County Historic Preservation Commission.
